

THE BIG, FAT INDORE COLLEGE FEST

Pics: Arpit Joshi

The Local Train performs on pro-night

Another member of the band, The Local Train

The Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Indore hosted their annual fest Fluxus '19 from February 14-17 on campus. Since the institute was also celebrating its tenth anniversary this year, the celebrations were bigger and better this time around. The festivities kicked off with Kavyanjali - an evening dedicated to Hindi and Urdu poetry and shayaris, with the acclaimed Dr Rahat Indori taking the centre-stage. Sharing the stage with him were renowned poets from all around Indore, including Sandeep Dwivedi, Surya Prakash Upadhyay, Rishi Dixit, and Nitesh Kushwaha.

The second day saw a beauty contest and the first chapter of pro-nights - led by the band The Local Train. The third day was filled with numerous cultural events on campus - including Hunkaar (a street play competition), The Voice of Fluxus, and a stand-up comedy event. There were many technical events conducted too. On the penultimate night of the celebration, Canadian EDM performer Miss Tara made the students groove to her beats and compositions.

For the finale, Amit Trivedi and his crew performed live on stage. Besides their original hits, they also sang numbers from different parts of the country, like Shubharambh from Gujarat, Chaudhary from Rajasthan, and Pashmina from the north.

—Saptaparna Biswas
@timesgroup.com

Amit Trivedi does a jig while performing a folk number

Dr Rahat Indori

A scene from street play competition

Miss Tara performs on EDM night

The students on pro-night