

IIT-I to launch MA English, literature & linguistics, in July

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Indore: Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Indore announced the launch of a two-year MA English (Literature and Linguistics) programme, with the session starting in July 2025.

This innovative course, offered by the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, features a distinctive syllabus designed to blend theoretical knowledge with practical application.

The MA programme will provide students with specialisations in various emerging fields, including Digital Humanities, Medical Humanities, Language Teaching, Applied Linguistics, Language Documentation and interdisciplinary research.

"This curriculum aims to equip students with critical thinking abilities and practical skills that are essential for flourishing in contemporary careers related to language and literature. With a strong emphasis on the evolving intersections of language and technology, the programme equips students for diverse roles in teaching, publishing, research, media, language technology, international communication and more," IIT-I said in a statement on Wednesday.

The structure includes hands-on projects, research opportunities, internships and real-world applications to ensure students are well-prepared for the job market, said IIT-I.

"Prospective candidates with a three-year undergraduate degree from any discipline and a qualifying score in the GATE Humanities and Social Sciences (HSS) XH C2 or XH C3 are encouraged to apply. Applications are open until May 18, 2025, for the July 2025 session," the statement said.

Classes will be led by faculty members who are experts in literature, linguistics and interdisciplinary studies, ensuring an enriching learning experience. Additionally, the programme offers a fellowship in the second year to support academic pursuits and enhance the educational journey of its students.
