Indore: Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), Indore was ranked 64th in the 2020 Times Higher Education Young University Rankings, becoming the 2nd Indian institute to appear in top 100, a statement from the institute said on Saturday.

IIT-I moved 4 notches from last year's performance to clinch the position awarded after assessing several parameters including teaching, research and citation among others.

The institute was ranked at 68 position last year. Prof Neelesh Kumar Jain, Director (Officiating), IIT, Indore said, "IIT Indore has improved its score in majority of performance indicators. The institute will work harder to improve upon the ranking next year." Overall, 26 Indian universities appear in the full ranking of the 414 universities in total with only 02 Indian Institutes appearing in the first 100. THE's 2020 Young University Rankings reveal the best universities under 50 years old, assessing them across teaching, research, international outlook and their work with industry.
