Fire breaks out in IIT lab

INDORE: Some documents were gutted as a minor fire broke out at a lab of Indian Institute of Technology Indore located on the premises of Institute of Engineering and Technology. The flames were doused before they could spread and damaged much property.

IIT Indore runs provisionally from IET and PACL campuses. In the evening when IIT Indore students were doing practical at a lab in M-block of IET campus, fire broke out reportedly due to short circuit. The students were immediately moved out of the campus and IIT technical staff cut of the power line of the lab so that the fire could not spread. On learning about the incident, fire bridge personnel reached the scene and put out the flames.
