Indian Institute of Technology, Indore was declared victorious in the second edition of IIT v/s IIM (cultural war), a total extravaganza of entertainment, which was held at IIM Indore lately.

The event included face-off between the two institutions in the field of dance, drama, photography, music, literature and quiz.

The first edition of the event started two years back with an idea of bringing the two prestigious institutions of the city together by competing in various events under both cultural and sports.

On day 1, music, literary and drama events were held with IIT Indore winning all the three events.

In music, the Solo and Band performances were won by Vijay Sanone (IIT Indore). He stood first and the 2nd position was secured by Aditi Agarwal and her team.

In literary event named as Ransense, Adithyan

Kannaiyan (IIT Indore) has secured the 1st position and in drama, group by Nishant Anand stood 1st.

On day 2, IIM Indore was under the pressure of winning all the remaining events in order to get a tie started with a blast and won the quiz event, but the fate was decided when Rajveer Singh and his team (IIT Indore) won all the photography events.

Adding on to that the dance club led by Anshul Singh and Anuj Agrawal of IIT Indore, which was taken for granted by the opponents as IITians are considered as 'geeks and lazy', blasted the stage with rocking performances one after the other, a release issued by IIT Indore said.

The group dance by Ajay Raikar, Shashank Bhargava and team gave the best performance of the day and held 1st position.

Duet performance was won by Parul Gupta and Kalash Agarwal (IIT Indore) and the solo performance was a tie between IIT and IIM.
